Read the following passage and answer the question given below.

Book clubs are a great way to meet new friends or keep in touch with old ones, while keeping up on your reading and participating in lively and intellectually stimulating discussions. If you're interested in starting a book club, you should consider the following options and recommendations.

The first thing you'll need are members. Before recruiting, think carefully about how many people you want to participate and also what the club's focus will be. For example, some book clubs focus exclusively on fiction, others read nonfiction. Some are even more specific, focusing only on a particular genre such as mysteries, science fiction, or romance. Others have a more flexible and open focus. All of these possibilities can make for a great club, but it is important to decide on a focus at the outset so the guidelines will be clear to the group and prospective member.

After setting the basic parameters, recruitment can begin. Notify friends and family, advertise in the local newspaper, and hang flyers on bulletin boards in local stores, colleges, libraries, and bookstores. When enough people express interest, schedule a kick-off meeting during which decisions will be made about specific guidelines that will ensure the club runs smoothly. This meeting will need to establish where the group will meet (rotating homes or a public venue such as a library or coffee shop); how often the group will meet, and on what day of the week and at what time; how long the meetings will be; how books will be chosen and by whom; who will lead the group (if anyone); and whether refreshments will be served and if so, who will supply them. By the end of this meeting, these guidelines should be set and a book selection and date for the first official meeting should be finalized. Planning and running a book club is not without challenges, but when a book club is run effectively, the experience can be extremely rewarding for everyone involved.

Comprehension:

Read the following passage and answer the questions given below it by choosing appropriate option.

One of the most important learning aspects in games is the language as “the meaning of language is always associated with actions, experience, images, and dialogue.” When this can be exploited, teachers can provide students with a wonderful learning experience by integrating games into their lessons. Using language-based games in ESL and EFL classrooms is quickly becoming a popular practice. The use of charades, 20 questions, and hangman is common throughout many ESL and EFL classrooms. Indeed many online ESL communities now include a Language Games section, and book that give ideas on how to use games in the language classroom such as Imogene Forte’s ESL Content-Based Language Games.

Using games in the language classroom opens doors for new possibilities in teaching and learning. Games, if done correctly, can become a powerful tool for groups to work together. Three popular games based on television shows that can be easily adapted for the use in ESL and EFL classrooms are (i) Jeopardy. (ii) Family Feud, and (iii) Wheel of Fortune. Using simplified rules, teachers can present students with a game show-like experience which they will enjoy and that will motivate them to learn the target language.

Indeed many online ESL communities now include a Language Games section, and book that give ideas on how to use games in the language classroom such as Imogene Forte’s ESL Content-Based Language Games.

Using games in the language classroom opens doors for new possibilities in teaching and learning. Games, if done correctly, can become a powerful tool for groups to work together. Three popular games based on television shows that can be easily adapted for the use in ESL and EFL classrooms are (i) Jeopardy. (ii) Family Feud, and (iii) Wheel of Fortune. Using simplified rules, teachers can present students with a game show-like experience which they will enjoy and that will motivate them to learn the target language.

Read the following passage and answer the questions given below it by choosing appropriate option.

A strict definition of bilingualism suggests that a bilingual person has native-like control of two languages. Some modern linguists, on the other hand, believe that a bilingual is one who is having at least one language skill in a second language.

It has been found that bilinguals often 'mix' and 'switch' between languages. It is important here to mention the difference between 'mixing' and 'switching' as in code mixing and code switching. Code mixing (CM) is a process whereby words of one language are inserted into another language or it involves interaction between two languages below the clausal (sentential) level. Code switching (CS), on the other hand, is a process whereby full sentences of one language are used in alteration with the other language or it involves interaction between two languages above the clausal (sentential) level. In other words, code mixing is intrasentential and code switching is intersentential. Coming to the psycholinguistic aspect of code mixing, it was earlier believed that bilingualism is disadvantageous for a child, and language mixing was considered as a stage of 'semi-lingualism' indicating a lesser proficiency in both the languages.

Comprehension:

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions given below.

The cactus is a plant which grows in very hot, dry places. They do not have leaves; instead they have spiny needles which stick out of their stems. There are many shapes of the cactus. Some are like columns or pillars and others are small and round. Some are shaped like wheels. Some are shaped like tubes or bells. Some grows as ground cover. Others grow as trees or shrubs. Their flowers come out at night because they are pollinated by insects or small animals that come out at night. Insects and small animals carry pollen from one cactus to another.

Some cacti have waxy coating on their stem, so that water will run down the stem to the roots. Cacti can absorb water from fog in the air, since it does not rain very much in the desert. Most cacti have long roots which can spread out close to the surface so they can absorb a lot of water on the occasions when it rains.

Most cacti are found in North and South America. Others are found in Africa, Madagascar, and Sri Lanka. Cacti do not have very large leaves because large leaves would allow the water to evaporate. When water evaporates, it changes from a liquid to a gas. When it becomes a gas, it is light enough to move through the air. That would be bad for the cactus because the cactus need the water to live.
